Mr. Smart indicated that Representative A. Paul Kitchin has raised the point that the briefings so far provided by the Agency to the Kilday Subcommittee have been fine but when is the Subcommittee going to tackle the problem of whether or not CIA is really doing a good job, i. e., are they really collecting the desired information and is the Agency properly analyzing the information available to it.

On the basis of FYI, Mr. Smart was shown the memorandum of conversation prepared by Colonel White relating to his meeting with Mr. Samuelsen on 22 July 1959. Mr. Smart stated after he had read it that this was only to be expected. He suggested that we continue to make every effort to work out something with Mr. Campbell and added that we should not be too concerned about unwarranted intervention in the unvouchered side.

I mentioned to Mr. Smart the recent meeting with Representative Clement J. Zablocki, General Cabell and myself in which Zablocki indicated his earlier discussions this year with the Speaker of the House on the subject of a Joint Committee on Intelligence. Smart was further advised that Zablocki had raised the subject of a report by the Kilday Subcommittee stating that he was awaiting the report to determine what, if any, further action should be taken with respect to a Joint Committee on Intelligence. At first Mr. Smart simply stated "there isn't going to be any." Upon posing the question of why not, he gave it a second thought and stated he would think about the matter and possibly discuss it with Mr. Kilday. I suggested it was possible that others than Zablocki would be expecting some type of report from the Kilday Subcommittee.

6. On the basis of information from [redacted] Robert McManus, Senate Internal Security Subcommittee staff, was advised that individuals who were following Cuban newspapers were not aware of any reports in these papers involving visits of American communists.

7. On the basis of a request from Herbert Blitz, Administrative Assistant to Senator Jacob K. Javits (R., New York) two FBIS translations were provided on speeches of Khrushchev on the Soviet economic challenge.

8. Advised David Carpenter of the House Legislative Counsel that we had reviewed the proofs of the Committee report on H. R. 7756 and had no changes to suggest.
